The face of the rocky hill which juts into the parade ground from the north was ablaze with gay dresses and gayer parasols.

In the field at exactly 9.20 o'clock, the time scheduled.

Up to noon there were only three casualties. F. McCarthy of the Seventy-first infantry was cut over the eye in combat drill because of a broken mask. H. Rochester of the First Cavalry had his shoulder dishocated by falling from his horse. Eugene Nathanson of the Twelfth Infantry had his finger crushed. All were attended by Ambulance Surgeon Cusick of Fordham Hospital.

Along the sloped terraces from Broadway and in a great circle ten TOBACCO MEN TO HAVE ern edges of the parade ground were masses of spectators. Boy Scouts helped 550 policemen under Inspectors Schmittberger and Walsh keep order and guided the holders of grand Representatives of Track Meet at stand seats to their places.

When the Governor arrived the interest of the crowds, which was constantly increasing by the thousands discharged from subway and Putnam Division and surface cars, was fixed on the combat exercise conducted by mets resembling those which divers wear, except that they were made of and influence. Field Marshal von Mackensen is being hard pressed in the Pinck region. His left wing has been thrown back five miles by the Slave, who re captured Logishin. His right flank is floundering in the marshes south of Pinak, and Russian trums have crossed the Jassi River a few miles east of the city. The Germans have suffered heavy losses and have abandoned large numbers of guns in their retreat.

The Austrians are counter-attacking determinedly, but have been unable to stem the Russian advance in the Volhynlar fortress triangle. Recapture of the fortress of Lutsk and the taking of 4,000 prisoners has been officially confirmed. The enemy is officially confirmed. The enemy is retiring upon hubon, whose works are not suitable for defense against an attack from the north, and it is believed here that the fortress itself will be reoccupied within a few days.

The battle all around Dvinsk and along the Dwina continues with unabated fury. The official statement from the War Office commented on the "gusts of fire" from the enemy's artillery, and reported that the Germans were making furious attacks.
